THE ROYAL TOURISTS.

A GREAT SEND OFF

A NOVEL BY LADY ASQUITH.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, January 10th.

The King and Queen came up to London to see the Duke and Duchess of York before the latter started on their 34,000 miles' journey to the Antipodes. There was a family party at Buckingham Palace; and their Majesties, with the Prince of Wales, Prince Henry, and Prince George drove to Victoria. Afterwards the King and Queen left London for Sandringham, where they will remain until the end of the first week in February. They will then come up to London for the opening of Parliament.

Duke and Duchess of York.

The departure of the Duke and Duchess of York was the occasion of a popular demonstration in the streets of London. A great crowd assembled at the London home of the Royal pair in Bruton Street, and when they appeared the police were unable to keep them back, so that the motor car was surrounded by people cheering and waving handkerchiefs. For the most part the crowd was composed of women and girls. As the motor drove off on the way to Victoria Station, a nurse appeared at one of the windows of the house, holding the little Princess Elizabeth in her arms for the parents to catch a last fleeting glimpse of their baby whom they will not see again for six months. The Duchess naturally feels the parting from her tiny daughter very keenly.

Dense crowds saw the departure from Victoria. On the platform to say a final farewell were the King and Queen, the Princess, and other Royalties, the Prime Minister, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayors, Sir Joseph Cook, High Commissioner for Australia, and Lady Cook, the Agents General for all the Dominions. Mr. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Ormsby-Gore, Under Secretary for the Dominions, the Lord Chancellor, Earl Beatty, the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, the parents of the Duchess of York, and many other notable people too numerous to mention here.

Wireless Telegraphy.

A good many complimentary things have been said about the new wireless telephony between London and New York. It is certainly very wonderful that he is able to speak across the Atlantic and hear a voice replying to you on the other side—at a price. The charge of 25 a minute, with a minimum call of three minutes, representing £15 for every call, seems a pretty stiff charge, and people will not be tempted to ring up an acquaintance to inquire about the weather.

On the other hand the service cannot be regarded as a complete success from a business standpoint seeing that there is no privacy. Business messages, if they are being sent, and the Midland Bank in London put through transactions involving £1,000,000 in currency on the first day the service was opened to the public. All the same, the fact remains that when you speak across the Atlantic the conversation can be heard over half the globe with ease provided the listener has suitable receiving apparatus. It is stated that what was said when the first messages were exchanged was heard in Vienna and in South Africa, as well as in New York and in London.

Of course the Post Office has never pretended that the wireless telephone service was safe from eavesdropping, but great skill and the use of special apparatus is necessary for this to be possible. I understand that secrecy might be obtained by using a combination of different wave lengths, but this would require very expensive equipment, and higher charges than those now demanded. Business men, it is thought, even when conducting enormous deals would not be prepared to pay more than is charged already.

Lady Oxford as Novelist.

It is interesting to hear that Lady Oxford is writing a novel. She has taken up her abode at Sutton Courtney, and reports say that she does most of her writing sitting up in bed at five o'clock in the morning. She does not dictate, but writes the story in her own clear handwriting. There is some speculation as to the style and (Continued at foot of next column).

MISERY RATHER THAN WORK.

A FRENCH VIEW OF THE CHINESE.

SOME UNORTHODOX OPINIONS.

NO FAITH IN A "YOUNG CHINA" MOVEMENT.

Some unorthodox opinions on China and the Chinese are advanced in a new book recently published in Paris, entitled "Modern Chinese Civilization." In face of the innumerable books on China, written only too often on the slender ground of but the most cursory acquaintance with that country, the prudent reader, before opening a new volume, examines the credentials of the author. In this case they appear satisfactory. The author, Dr. Legendre, has lived for more than a few years in China; he has been director of a hospital, with the Chinese student class who were his pupils and with the Chinese people, who were his patients; and he has been in charge of eight successive scientific missions in different parts of the country.

In the first part of his work Dr. Legendre considers various aspects of Chinese civilization, e.g., the organization of the family, the house, the street, the clothes and food of the Chinese, their arts and industries, their agriculture, the organization of society, and finally their religious ideas. In the second part he enters into the ethnic characteristics, and the historical evolution of China, after which he studies the main currents of opinion which now dominate the country, and casts a look on probable future developments.

His book advances a number of new and even revolutionary opinions. For example, the author attacks the theory which makes of the Chinese people an ethnic unity and which carries back its civilization to the most distant antiquity. According to him China is composed of two completely different ethnic stocks, one of which is of white origin and comes, like the races of Europe, from the plateaus of Central Asia, while the other is negroid origin. It is the first of these races that brought to China her civilization, whose origin is therefore the same as that of Europe, and which has, moreover, been constantly, even at a remote period, subject to influences coming from the West.

According to Dr. Legendre China has invented nothing; in fact, one of her characteristics is her incapacity to invent anything at all. The Chinese cares only for purely speculative studies, particularly philosophy. He is completely devoid of talent in matters concrete, notably in the realm of science.

In a general way Dr. Legendre applies himself to the task of explaining most of the illusions held by Europeans about the Chinese people. He shows the latter to be chiefly pre-occupied in economizing effort, apathetic, and preferring misery to work. He points to the Chinese superstition against trees as one of the causes of the poverty of China. The Chinese have systematically cleared their country of trees, and oppose every attempt at reforestation. Every time that an attempt has been made to plant trees, or to lay out plantations the Chinese peasant has surreptitiously cut down the young plants. Hence one finds disorderly weather conditions: drought is followed by flood and flood by famine. As a result the population, instead of increasing, is decreasing. Our author regards the commonly quoted estimate of 400 millions as grossly exaggerated. According to him, the population is not over 300 millions, which would give a very moderate density of population, lower than that of many parts of Europe.

Finally, Dr. Legendre has not the least faith in the "Young China" movement or in the future of China. In the nationalistic tendencies of the Chinese intellectuals he sees only disorder and anarchy.

treatment of the tale, having regard to the way Lady Oxford wrote the famous "Memoirs" some years ago; but this much can be said—the novel deals with Leicester-shire and hunting, and some of her personal friends come into the manuscript.—H.B.

THE FAMILY AT HOME.

THE COST OF THE SCHOOLS.

[By PATERFAMILIAS.]

This is always rather an unfortunate time of year for a Far Eastern father with a family "at home." The accounts for the last quarter of 1926 have arrived and it is now possible to realise, to the full extent, what an expensive luxury a family is when the bread winner is 10,000 miles away.

Two boys and a girl in England, together with incidental expenses, cost nearly £800 a year. That is not as much as some more wealthy people pay for the privilege of educating three children "at home," but it is very much more than it ought to be.

The local Government appears to have recognised the great hardship that is imposed upon the family man who has children in Great Britain. They have, so it is said, granted a concession that may be called a "family allowance." Cynics might label it a "compassionate allowance."

As far as those of us who are not in the Government service can find out the arrangement is as follows. A Government servant has a sterling salary which is paid to him at a "privileged dollar." In fact he receives twelve dollars to the pound, or rather more than 20 per cent. extra to the number he would receive if he were paid at the rate of to-day, which is slightly more than two shillings to the dollar. If he has a family at home he can remit a proportion of his salary—perhaps 25 per cent. of it, or more—at a rate which is said to be a dollar for half-a-crown.

That is an immense help for the family at home. It is something to know that the Government of this Colony has acknowledged the justice of the idea of a "family allowance."

A Typical Case.

It is needless, perhaps, to explain that the writer is not a Government servant. He may, therefore, be permitted to express his sympathy with those in the service who have the task of educating a family "at home."

A cadet who reaches the age of about forty seems to receive a salary of £1,800 a year; on at twelve dollars to the pound, £1,500 a month. When he has paid his contribution to the Widows' and Orphans' Fund and has had his salary reduced for house rent and the use of solid furniture he has left about $1,070—according to "what they say."

Now let us suppose that he has to educate Tom, Harry and Mary in England. Unless he has a "privileged dollar" for his remittances he cannot do it at less than $600 a month when the dollar is round about 2/.

That leaves him about $450 a month for all expenses for himself and his wife in Hong Kong. It is quite true that many people in this Colony have to live on less. On the other hand they probably have not had the expensive education. Moreover, the "cadet" is a picked man for he is selected as a result of a competitive examination.

The Son's Future.

Any boy should go "home" to England at about the age of eight years if he is to have a fair chance at a public school.

Practical experience with boys at two different preparatory schools in England has taught one father that you cannot obtain healthy surroundings, good sanitation, full diet, proper playing fields and careful teaching at less than £180 a year. The schools selected cost rather more than that. One was semi-officially attached to a well-known public school. The other was on the South Coast of England.

It cost three guineas a week to provide suitable accommodation during the holidays—say another £50 per annum. We have now reached a total of £210. If we add £40 a year for clothes, pocket money, travelling, doctor, dentist and the numerous incidentals that only mother seems able to keep within reasonable limits, we shall be rather optimistic. My own accounts for a boy at a preparatory school show a total that is nearly £300 for 1926. It is true that the school dentist fitted him with some gold plate contraption for his teeth that cost £25 in 1925 and in 1926 it had to be replaced as it fell out during a swim in the sea. That sort of thing seems to happen about once a year.

When it came to selecting a public school for the brother the first enquiries brought answers that were alarming. We did not consider Eton or Harrow. The actual inclusive fee at Eton seems to be £210, but we were informed that the extras bring it to beyond £300 a year. The inclusive fees for Winchester were given as £210. We visited that famous school but decided that it was "too much expense." Charterhouse and Rugby are about £210. All of these schools have long waiting lists. They could easily be filled if the fees were doubled.

BROADCASTING IN RUSSIA.

LOUD-SPEAKERS AT STREET CORNERS.

OPEN AIR CONCERTS.

How broadcasting and telegraphic facilities have been developed in Russia under the Soviet régime was explained by Mr. Smirnov, People's Commissar for Posts and Telegraphs, in an interview at Chesham House, London.

Mr. Smirnov, who has been studying the methods of the British Post Office in company with other members of the Soviet Postal Service, declared that a new 50-kilowatt broadcasting station, with an effective range of 2,000 miles, was at present under construction in Moscow. This station will be completed in about two months' time.

Open-Air Concerts.

"Since the revolution," said Mr. Smirnov, "the need for a closer connection between towns and villages has become more and more urgent, and, therefore, the Soviet Government has paid particular attention to the erection of powerful broadcasting stations, and also to the mass production of comparatively cheap receiving sets. In this way the villages are kept in close touch with Moscow, and are enabled to listen to speeches and concerts from the capital. In all the big towns loud-speakers have been erected at the street corners, and even in the winter there is always a crowd listening to the news and to concerts. We have about 60 independent small stations, with a range of 300 miles, either constructed or under construction; but even with these and the new Moscow station our needs are not completely satisfied, and we contemplate building an even more powerful station in the near future.

"Telephonic development, too, has not been neglected, and, addition to an increase of 40 per cent. in the extent of our telephone lines during the last two years, in 1927 we intend to construct a line from Rostov to Tiflis which will make a connection from Leningrad to Tiflis, a distance of 1,875 miles. A programme has been drawn up for work on the telephonic system for a period of five years, which will cost about £1,600,000, and which we hope will supply the most necessary needs of the population.

"An endeavour to raise the necessary capital internally will be made; but we shall probably require external industrial credits." I have already had some conversations with British firms on this subject, and negotiations are in train, although no orders have yet been placed.

SUGAR FACTORY FOR ILOILO.

The erection of a sugar central at the cost of about P8,000,000 in Iloilo is contemplated by the Lopez brothers, two of the wealthiest planters in the Philippines. No definite plans have been made as yet, as the Iloilo hacenderos are now in Manila looking over the market for the purchase of suitable machinery. It is understood that of the six million pesos, two million will go for the construction of the central and four million for machinery.

Uppingham, Hillybury, Dover, Tanbridge, Wellington and one or two other famous public schools have inclusive fees of from £100 to £180. The writer has visited many of them. They have fine traditions, a splendid record of the "old boys" of the school, they seem to inculcate a peculiar blend of the old Greek and Roman ideal of manhood. In recent years they have become much more efficient as teaching machines. As machines for the mass production of magnificent cricketers, footballers and courageous young men they have what the Americans call "a one hundred per cent. efficiency."

Rather less expensive, but very accessible schools are Lancing, Hurstpierpoint, King's at Canterbury, Dulwich, and "At Lancing the fees are £136 per annum. At Dulwich College they are £45 a year for a day boy.

The University.

The story is not ended when John or Tom leave school. The Hong Kong "cadet" had the benefit of a University education; it is not surprising that he wants his son to have the same.

"I allow my boy £500 a year while he is at Cambridge," said a local friend a few months ago.

"That includes everything!" was the enquiry.

"Absolutely—holidays, clothes, fees, etc. If I let him have more he wouldn't do much work. If he has less he would ruin the full benefit of a University education."

"Thank you," I said with a sigh. "I am afraid I shall have to ask for an increase of pay before I can afford that."

The problem of how to equip the children for the great struggle is one that must be discussed some other time. Enough has been written to show that children who have parents in the Far East are expensive. And yet they are very precious—it is something to help a little the new generation.

RACE TO STOP A WEDDING.

GIRL'S FATHER RELENTS VESTRY SCENE.

As a wedding ceremony was about to commence at St. John's Church, Coleford, Gloucestershire, the bride's father, Mr. G. Phelps, a farmer of Lydbrook (Gloucestershire), rushed into the church, after hurrying there in a motor, and forbade the marriage to proceed. The parties adjourned to the vestry, where Mr. Phelps explained that his daughter, Ethel, was only nineteen years of age, and that he objected to her marrying the bridegroom, Mr. Ernest Powell, of Lane End, near Coleford. High words ensued between the bridegroom's mother and the father of the bride. Meanwhile the vicar, the Rev. Canon E. H. Brice, attempted to act as peacemaker. The bride went into hysterics. On her recovery her father gave his consent to the marriage, which then took place. The bride's father had heard of the intended marriage only shortly before it was due to take place, and had driven at first to the wrong church in pursuit of his daughter.

WEDDING.

MEMBERS OF WELL KNOWN
CHINESE FAMILIES.

DR. PHOON SECK WAH—MISS
CHAN SUEN LAN.

Two well known local Chinese families were united yesterday afternoon, when the pretty wedding took place at St. John's Cathedral of Dr. Phoon Seck Wah and Miss Chan Suen Lan.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Chan Harr, of No. 1, St. Stephen's Lane, who were resident in Australia for 20 years. The family has many relatives and friends in Canton, Shanghai, and other parts of China, and also in Australia and America. Mr. Chan Harr, and Messrs. Ma Ying Pui and Cheung Kon Sang, and other friends founded the present Sincere Company, with which Mr. Chan Harr is still connected.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phoon Sze Leong, who own an extensive business in Singapore, but have their home in Canton. The Phoon boys were educated in Singapore, and four of them have graduated at the Hong Kong University.

Dr. Phoon Seck Wah, the bridegroom, resides at 41A, Bonham Road. He graduated M.B. and B.S. at the Hong Kong University in 1922 with his brother Dr. Phoon Seck Foo. His elder brother, Dr. Phoon Seck Wing was given the M.D. degree at the congregation held at the Hong Kong University in January. The bridegroom was house surgeon at the University from January to June, 1922. All three brothers won the King Edward VII. scholarship.

The Cathedral Ceremony. Yesterday's wedding service was fully choral. The hymns sung were "Lead us Heavenly Father, Lead Us," and "Love Divine, all Love Excelling." Wedding music was played by Mr. F. Mason, the Cathedral Organist, and he was assisted in carrying out the musical programme by a choir and by Dr. W. K. Fok.

The officiating clergy were: the Rev. H. Copley Moyle and the Rev. Lee Kau Yan.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Elsie Poon, Miss Mabel Chan and Miss Au, was given in marriage by her father. She looked charming in a gown of silver lace over white satin charmeuse, which was trimmed with orange blossom and silver roses. Her veil was of Nottingham net, trimmed with orange blossom, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Elsie Poon Lu Tung wore a dress of pearl and apricot crepe-de-chine, trimmed with silver lace. Miss Mabel Chan and Miss Au were attired in mauve and shell pink frocks, and carried baskets of sweet peas to match.

The duties of "best man" were carried out by Dr. S. Q. Phoon, the younger brother of the bridegroom. Following the Cathedral ceremony, a reception was held at St. John's Hall, Hong Kong University, and later the bride and bridegroom left on their honeymoon. The bride's travelling dress was of shell pink, embroidered with sequins.

Both bride and bridegroom were the recipients of numerous presents. The present from the bride to the bridegroom was a gold watch; and that from the bridegroom to the bride a diamond bracelet.

The Guests. Hundreds of guests were present at the Cathedral service. Among the numerous guests invited were: The Hon. Sir Shou Son Chow, Mr. W. W. Hornell (Vice-Chancellor, the University), Professor and Mrs. K. H. Digby, Professor and Mrs. C. Y. Wang, Professor J. Anderson and others from the University, Dr. J. B. Addison (P.C.M.O.), and many representatives of the local medical profession. Miss M. Sloan, Miss E. B. Dupuy, Miss Cranfield, Miss Middleton Smith, Miss Pope, staff and students of St. Stephen's Girls' College, representatives of the Chinese Church and of the hospitals in the Colony; Mr. and Mrs. Ma Ying Pui, Mr. and Mrs. Ma Ying Chan, Mr. and Mrs. Choy Hing, Mr. Choy Cheong, Mr. Mok Kon Sang, Mr. Kwok Chuen, Mr. To Jack Man, Mr. David Chan See, Mr. Wong Kwok Shun, Mr. Cheung Kon Sang, Dr. Jew Hawk, Dr. S. F. Lee and others.

OBITUARY.

DR. F. O. STEDMAN.

FORMERLY SURGEON IN HONG KONG.

The news of the death in England of Dr. Frederic Oswald Stedman, M.D., B.S. (London), M.R.C.S., will be received with much regret by many residents of Hong Kong. The notification of his death was made by cable. The late Dr. Stedman was formerly a surgeon in Hong Kong.

No details are to hand, excepting the fact that he passed away on the 2nd instant, but it is thought likely that he was a victim of the influenza epidemic which was widespread in England at that time.

The late Dr. Stedman, who was 64 years of age, came to the Colony in 1893 to join the firm of Drs. Hartigan, Cantley and Cowie (now known as Drs. Hartigan, Black, Balean, Koch, Stuart Taylor, Morrison, Gawler and Milward). On the retirement of Dr. Cantley in 1897 he became a partner in the firm the name of which then changed to Dr. Hartigan, Stedman and Rennie. Dr. M. Hartigan, who came East five years after the late Dr. Stedman, was admitted a partner in 1903, when the firm again changed its name.

Dr. Stedman, who was a Justice of the Peace for the Colony, won much esteem during his lengthy residence here, being recognised as a very skilful surgeon. He left Hong Kong on retirement about ten years ago.

Prior to coming to Hong Kong, Dr. Stedman was House Surgeon, House Physician and Surgeon Registrar at the Charing Cross Hospital; House Physician at the National Hospital for Paralysis and Epilepsy; London; and clinical assistant at Moorefield's Eye Hospital.

The deceased leaves a widow and two sons—Mr. Noel Stedman and Mr. Nigel Stedman—the latter of whom holds an appointment in Kenya Colony. The utmost sympathy will be felt with the family in their bereavement.

MR. A. D. JUPP.

PASSES AWAY AT CHRIST
CHURCH OXFORD.

It is with regret we record the death of Mr. Arthur Denys Jupp, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jupp, of Chislehurst, Kent, England, and late of Hong Kong.

Mr. Jupp, senior, is a partner in the firm of John D. Humphreys and Son, and is at present in Hong Kong with Mrs. Jupp, having arrived in the Colony recently.

Mr. Jupp, senior, spent upwards of twenty years in Hong Kong, leaving here about 17 years ago.

Mr. Jupp, junior, passed away after an attack of pneumonia, at the early age of 24 years, at Christ Church, Oxford, where he had commenced his duties as a law tutor. He received his education at Brasenose College, Oxford.

ARMS FOR SHANGHAI.

CHINESE HEAVILY FINED IN LONDON.

At East Ham, Wing Ah Sang, 24, a seaman, of the Glen Line steamer Glenary, lying in King George V. Docks, was charged with illegally importing and concealing on the vessel forty-eight revolvers and 4,750 rounds of ammunition.

Mr. H. J. Fleet, for the Customs, said the Glenary arrived in the docks on a Wednesday, and in the afternoon the vessel was searched by Revenue officers. In a wooden case protecting the hot water pipes in the hold the revolvers and ammunition were found. On the crew being questioned, the prisoner admitted the ownership of the revolvers and ammunition. He added that he had brought them from Hamburg, that they had been taken to the Glenary in a motor-boat, and that he was going to take them to some friends in Shanghai.

Prisoner, who caused some trouble by refusing to plead, eventually pleaded guilty and made no defence. He was fined £250, the value of goods, the default of payment being ninety-one days imprisonment.

GAMBLERS IN AN EMPTY HOUSE.

"HAKKAS UNABLE TO SPEAK
THE TRUTH."

EXTRA FINE FOR "LYING EXCUSES."

Before Mr. R. E. Lindsell, at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, Det. Sgt. Rosetakwy charged 31 Chinese with gambling in an empty house at Sai On village.

Ten of the defendants failed to put in an appearance, and their bail of $5 each was exonerated.

The first defendant said that he had been looking for a friend.

"Why do you go to an empty house to look for a friend when there is nobody there but gamblers?" retorted the Magistrate.

The next man questioned said that he went to call a foki to a feast.

Mr. Lindsell: Indeed! What a wonderful excuse. Did you find him?

To another man who said that he had been sent to the house by his foreman, his Worship replied: "Don't make lying excuses."

Three other defendants, who were Hakkas, also made transparently untrue excuses to account for their presence in the house, which provoked the remark from his Worship: "I have come to the conclusion that you Hakkas are constitutionally unable to speak the truth."

In inflicting sentence, Mr. Lindsell said: "Those who have admitted their guilt are fined $3 each, those who have wasted my time with lying excuses will pay $4 each and those who have not turned up will forfeit their bail of $5 each."

His Worship also directed that the $3.40 found in the house be given to the Poor Box and that the gambling paraphernalia be confiscated.

LORRY DRIVER CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER.

COOLIE KILLED AT PRAJA
WEST.

The motor lorry driver who was adjudged guilty of negligent driving by the jury at an enquiry held into the death of a coolie before Mr. R. E. Lindsell about a fortnight ago, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield yesterday, at the Central Police Court, on a charge of manslaughter. Defendant was represented by Mr. C. A. S. Eusa.

The defendant, who was driving a lorry at about 3 p.m. on January 30th, ran into a coolie just outside the China Provident Loan and Mortgage Co.'s godowns, at Connaught Road West. The deceased and a gang of coolies were carrying sacks of pea-nuts from a junk into the godown.

The evidence given by some of the coolies was to the effect that the lorry knocked down the deceased, who was running across the road. The lorry did not stop and that no horn was sounded before the accident. The coolies gave chase, and the lorry eventually stopped at Water Street, where the driver picked up a Chinese constable and then returned to the scene of the accident.

A Chinese constable said when he went back to the scene of the accident with the driver, the coolies had adopted a very threatening attitude and that fearing trouble, he and the driver drove away again in the direction of Queen's Road West. They met a European sergeant there and enlisted his aid. The three went back to where the dead body was and had the deceased removed to the Mortuary.

The case at this stage was again adjourned.

WING ON SHROFF'S COMPLAINT.

CUSTOMERS CHEATED HIM
OF $30.

A paying-in shroff of the Wing On Company made a report to the Police that he had been defrauded of $30 by two foreigners who went to the Wines and Spirits Department to make a purchase.

According to the complainant's story a bill of $32.50 for good pure chased from the Wines Department, was handed to the shroff, and one of the two customers who made this purchase, tendered a $100 bill. The shroff was handing out the change, when one of the customers asked to have a $30 bill.

The shroff, not having this particular note on hand, consented to the $100 note being changed at a money-changer's shop in the street. A Chinese who accompanied the two customers eventually returned with the money, which was handed, all in a wad, to the shroff. The $30 bill was handed back to the customer in addition to the other notes and coins which went to make up the balance of $97.50.

Not until the customers had departed did the shroff count the notes. He then found it is alleged that he was short to the extent of thirty dollars.

The shroff stated that the customers appeared to be Portuguese.

THE NEW RULER OF HANKOW.

CANTON'S MINISTER IN SPATS AND HIS DAUGHTER IN BREECHES.

AN EYE WITNESS'S SARCASTIC PICTURE.

Hankow, writes the Daily Mail correspondent in that city, is disappointed with the appearance of the new Nationalist Government. It is so different from what was expected. The people were justified in thinking the "liberators of the oppressed," so long advertised by their advance propagandists, would be Chinese in outward form as well as in character.

They are neither. The pompous entry of the pilgrims from Canton, attended by aeroplane antics overhead and the explosion of many fire-crackers underfoot, revealed to the anxious local populace several disillusioning and disconcerting facts, not the least being that their future masters are a lot of weedy young gentlemen in tweeds or plus fours and spats, with a florid taste in Bond-street ties and a predilection for talking English among themselves.

What, ask the puzzled merchants and middle-class Chinese, and even the coolies, is the difference between the foreigners they know and a lot of Chinese who ape them in every particular? How can the spirit of nationalism live in a British trench coat or American patent leather? Are they being exploited by a new type of foreign invader posing as Chinese?

I am inclined to think that many even more urgent questions will obtrude themselves by the time the Nationalist Government has got into its stride. Many rude shocks await the inhabitants of Hankow. But for the moment it is sufficiently disturbing to them to find these undersized, fussy young ordering old officials about and dashing up and down the foreign and native cities in shining limousines.

The Cantonese students who call themselves a Government are as different from the great mass of the people they desire to dominate as chalk is from cheese. They look at China through Western eyes and their minds are filled with vague and restless longings born of a desire to Westernise the country for their own ends. They cannot even talk with the people of the north; interpreters must intervene.

Nasty Types. It might not be so bad if they were one homogeneous type. Some are aggressive young men, full of American slang, who talk breezily of "putting pep" into the worn-out institutions of China. Others are of a more restrained type and bear the imprint of an English university. Still others are as heavily marked by their intensive training in Moscow's colleges for Asiatic propagandists. Then there is a fourth type, Westernised in China by the methods of the mission schools.

They do not blend well. The American-educated "student" considers his colleague from Cambridge "too slow." The latter is inclined to look down on the product of the United States, with his nasal accent and informal methods of address, as being rather vulgar. Both consider the graduate of Moscow's Communist factory as a gloomy and narrow-minded person. All three pity the students who have never been abroad. All four unite in heartily detesting the Russians associated with the Government as "advisers," and whose advice is reckoned better than their company. I have heard them contemptuously referred to as "Lenin's lackeys."

Mr. Eugene Chen and The Chinese. One of the most polished specimens of European civilisation in this galaxy is Mr. Eugene Chen, the new Minister for Foreign Affairs. Dignified members of the Chinese community contemplate him with a shudder. Mr. Chen has nothing Chinese about him, unless it be a slight cast of countenance which is by no means convincing. He was born in Trinidad, and at one time during his chequered career as an anti-British journalist it suited him to claim British nationality.

He looks Western, but he hates the West. His brilliant eyes blare viciously behind his gold-rimmed spectacles when he pillories Great Britain for her Imperialistic sins and his slender hands excitedly saw the air. His command of English is well-nigh perfect when he talks: he writes it far better than many native sons of Britain.

Mr. Chen wears white spats below his carefully creased trousers. He is a credit to his London tailor. He quotes Kipling and Hardy with easy confidence. Some of his ironic despatches, indited from the Foreign Office at Canton, are real masterpieces of English prose. His brain is undoubtedly the ablest of any at the command of Canton's Russian tutors. Mr. Chen is, of course, a great patriot. Yet he takes no chances. When I go to see him in his secluded room at the Terminus Hotel I must pass a "gunman" at the door—a little Cantonese sergeant in khaki whose automatic is always poised in his right hand.

Charming Miss Chen. Nor could Mr. Chen's daughter—charming though she is—be hailed by the flower of China's population as representative of their country. Fresh from an American college for women, Miss Sylvia Chen wears the latest Paris fashions with "true Western grace. She entered Hankow with her father, clad in well-cut riding breeches, to the great discomposure of the local Chinese dignitaries.

Mr. Woo, the mild, spectacled young secretary to Minister Chen, is another finished product of European tutors and tailors. And there are many like him, equipped with tags of speech which divide them into two classes—the "Cherries" and "See-you-laters."

Hot Chinese. They are a thousand miles removed from Chinese ways of living. At Kuling, for one night, they stayed at a Chinese hotel. No more. Next morning, with one accord, they moved down to the best European hotel.

Hankow was warned in advance to provide them of its best. Steam heat, brass bedsteads, and a private bath were some of the little essentials required by the officials when they arrived at the Terminus Hotel this week. Their motor-cars are the finest in the city.

All of which is magnificent, but the puzzled people of Hankow say it is not Chinese.

LITTLE PICKETS!
BE GOOD.EVENING LECTURES
SUGGESTED.HELPING THEM TO "BETTER WAYS OF LIFE."ARREST OF CADET DESERTERS ORDERED.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

In order to educate and polish the rough elements in Canton who are taking up picketing as a profession, the Kuomintang are being advised to start evening lectures for them. It is thought that such lectures will help them "to better ways of life." A scheme for twenty night schools has been drawn up for the consideration of the Kuomintang Party.

The Kuomintang Superintendent of Education in Canton has just ordered the closing of 215 private schools, alleging that they have failed to comply with Kuomintang regulations.

Owing to a dispute among the butchers in Canton regarding the length of the New Year holidays, the residents of the Southern Capital had no pork for dinner on February 8th.

Among the most recent strikers are the organised employees of the Judicial Department. If they follow the methods of other unions it is to be presumed that all the City Courts will have to remain closed as pickets invariably blockade premises of those employers who refuse labour demands, and there seems no reason why destination in this matter should be drawn between a shop and a Court of Justice.

The number of people still requiring assistance from the Strike Committee is now put at 37,500. A few months ago the number was 43,500 and at one time it was 66,000. Before the strikers withdraw from the Committee's "protection" they want the $100 which was promised to each of them. So far, however, only $10 has been paid.

According to reports from Swatow the Kwangtung districts bordering Fukien and Kiangsi are now infested with bandits. No caravan, less than 100 strong, dares to cross from one province to another.

By order of the Kuomintang Ministry of Communications the Bureau of Reconstruction in Canton will assume supervision over the Chinese Post Office. It would seem now, therefore, that the institution will be in the unenviable position of having to take orders from Peking and Canton at the same time.

All available Kuomintang regiments still in Canton and district are to be sent to Central and East China to participate in the coming spring campaign against the Northern forces.

The Kuomintang General Headquarters is ordering the arrest of some 47 former cadets of the Kuomintang Military Academy at Whampoa. They were sent to Hankow to report for active service recently but they deserted en route.

To minimise the organised strength of all possible "anti-red" agencies in Kwangtung, the Kuomintang authorities have issued orders forbidding the Volunteer corps of one village or town to join with the forces of another. Moreover, only bona fide residents of a village may become members of the Volunteer body of that village. At the time of the disbandment of the Volunteer Movement in Canton by the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen in October, 1924, there was a united force nearly 50,000 strong.

Chinese Post Office business in Canton had to be suspended for half a day yesterday, because the postmen desired to have a few hours off to say farewell to their delegates who were going to Hankow to attend a Postmen's Conference.

HONG KONG CHINESE
SEAMEN'S UNION.

NOT WORKING FOR A STRIKE

SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

The Hong Kong Chinese Seamen's Union at Des Voeux Road, Central, entertained at tea members of the Chinese Press yesterday afternoon. Mr. Edin Lung, the secretary, on behalf of the seamen, said that their Union had not been running during the strike and boycott and only resumed its functions on October 10th last.

He wished at this New Year gathering to assure the public, through the Press, that there was no foundation whatever to the reports current that there would be another strike and that the Seamen's Union was causing the trouble. He said that he could speak for all local seamen and condemned the reports as false and baseless.

Mr. Lung hoped that the merchants would take no heed of this fabrication. He recalled the great losses incurred by all on account of the last strike and did not think that any person would be so foolish as to want more suffering.

To show that there was nothing to the second strike rumour, he pointed out that a large number of Hong Kong Chinese labour unions had reopened their quarters after their return from Canton. Had they any intention of calling another strike they surely would not have returned from Canton and resumed their activities here.

MISSIONARIES ARRIVE AT MANILA.MORE REFUGEES FROM
FOOCHOW AREA.NUMBER NOW AT MANILA
ONE HUNDRED.

According to the Manila Times of last Thursday, eight more American missionaries from the Foochow area arrived that morning on the s.s. President Harrison, this bringing the total of American missionaries who have fled from China to Manila on account of the anti-foreign and anti-missionary riots to 100.

Among the refugees was L. M. Wilkinson, a young American who was doing business near Foochow. He stated that the majority of refugees leaving Foochow were not molested but that Chinese troops at Yenping, a short distance up the river, stopped all boats travelling toward Shanghai, and that it was necessary to make the trip at night time.

FILIPINO'S SEARCH FOR WORK.DESTITUTE AND SENT TO
HOUSE OF DETENTION.A FORMER ST. PAUL'S COLLEGE STUDENT.

A hard luck story was told by Benito de Guzman, a young Filipino, who appeared before Mr. W. Schofield yesterday morning on a charge of vagrancy.

Guzman told a story of a fruitless search for employment which took him to four different ports, eventually landing him in Hong Kong, destitute and without money or friends. He said he had been a student at St. Paul's College but he left school and went to search for work and his quest took him to Macao, Singapore, and Manila, eventually returning to Hong Kong. He had a little money when he landed here and when this was exhausted, he slept in the streets, and had been cold these last few nights, and he thought the best course was to give himself up to the police.

Sergeant Elston stated that a passage back to his home in Manila had been promised the defendant by the American Consul. His Worship sent Guzman to the house of detention until a passage could be arranged for his return to Manila.

OUR SCOUTS.

INSPECTED BY H.E. THE
GOVERNOR.AN UNTRUTHFUL INSINUA-TION CONTROVERTED.NOT MILITARISTS, BUT BROTHERS.

Officiating in the capacity of Chief Scout of Hong Kong, H.E. the Governor (Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G.) inspected the Scout Troops of the Hong Kong Association in the grounds in front of Government House yesterday afternoon. His Excellency also presented the Prince of Wales' banner to the 20th Troop, who won it in 1926 for general efficiency in Scoutcraft and the year's work. During their year of tenure, the holders of the banner are entitled to be called "The Governor's Troop."

A feature of the proceedings was the taking of the Scout oath by the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., the new President of the Hong Kong Boy Scout Association, who was invested by His Excellency with the Tenderfoot badge. Letters of commendation were also awarded to two troops for special services, and warrants of office handed to two scoutmasters.

H.E. the Chief Scout of Hong Kong gave an eloquent address to the scouts on parade, and refuted the insinuation made by ill-disposed people that the Boy Scout movement is only disguised militarism. His Excellency declared that the Scout movement aimed to establish world brotherhood between boys of all races to train them for citizenship and to be world brothers when they attained manhood.

A Smart Turn Out.

The turn out of thirteen troops of Scouts was exceedingly smart and the lads looked spruce as a regiment of Regulars in their neat khaki shirts and shorts, against a background of greenery.

The parade was under the Command of the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave (Scout Commissioner of Hong Kong), and there were also present, in addition to H.E. the Governor and Chief Scout of the Colony, Lady Clementi (President of the Hong Kong Girl Guide Association) in her uniform of the Guides, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G. (President of the local Scout Association), Capt. C. H. Steele (A.D.C. to H.E. the Governor), and District Scoutmaster White.

Coming smartly to attention as His Excellency came on to the ground, the troops accorded him the salute. Sir Cecil then proceeded to inspect them, and afterwards presented the Prince of Wales' Banner for general efficiency in Scoutcraft to the 20th Troop.

Commissioner WALDEGRAVE detailed how on the 19th of June last year the 19th Troop were returning to headquarters in charge of Scoutmaster Hon Yukioi, when they were informed that a European lady had been victimised by a bag-matcher. They gave chase and were successful in intercepting this man. A monetary reward had been suggested, but as this was against the Scout traditions, it had been decided to award a letter of commendation to the Troop.

His Excellency then presented this letter to the Scoutmaster of this troop.

Fire Services.

Proceeding, Commissioner Waldegrave related how the 20th Troop had had their services much requested in cases of fires, by reason of the fact that their headquarters were in the Central District. This troop did particularly good service on the occasion of the Hong Kong Hotel fire. They had turned out frequently and rendered very real assistance. A letter of commendation was also to be granted to this troop. The Commissioner added that only the previous night this troop had put out a fire in the grounds of Government House. The fire was caused apparently by a cigarette having set fire to some bushes.

His Excellency handed a letter of commendation to the Scoutmaster of the Troop in question.

The Scouts Oath.

Dr. Kotewall was then invited to join the ranks of the local Scout Association as their President by taking the Scout Oath. This Dr. Kotewall did by standing in front of H.E. the Chief Scout with his fingers raised in the scout salute, and repeating the oath which was administered by the Commissioner. His Excellency then invested Dr. Kotewall with the Scouts' tenderfoot badge, as a sign that he had been admitted to their ranks.

Scoutmasters Roberts and Leveson Gower were handed their warrants of office by His Excellency.

CHIEF SCOUT'S ADDRESS.

Addressing the Scouts, H.E. the Chief Scout said:—I am glad to see so good a muster of you here this afternoon and I have noted with much pleasure your smart and workmanlike appearance and your good discipline. I especially congratulate the 20th Troop on winning the Prince of Wales' banner.

BURGLARS ROB THE
SUPREME COURT.CHIEF JUSTICE'S CLOCK
STOLEN.

A $70 HAUL.

No place seems to be safe from the attention of our local cracksmen and two clocks, valued at $70, were stolen from the Supreme Court sometime between 6.30 on Tuesday evening and early yesterday morning.

When the caretaker was cleaning the place early yesterday morning, he noticed three mirrors, one belonging to Mr. Maynard and the other two to Sir Henry Gollan, lying on a table in the passage running along the side of the big Court. He also found the key to Sir Henry Gollan's door in the lock, together with Mr. Maynard's key on the same ring.

On arriving at his office yesterday morning, Mr. R. W. H. Maynard, clerk to the Chief Justice, discovered that a wall clock which he had hung in his room, and a similar one in Sir Henry Gollan's Chambers, were missing.

The keys to the doors are usually left in a desk drawer in the passage between the two doors, and as the original keys were used, the burglar must have known where to find them, after entering the building.

There are no signs of any entrance having been forced into the building, and everything was in order when Mr. Maynard left on Tuesday evening.

Unhappily there are ill-disposed people who, observing your smartness on parade and your good discipline, exclaim that the Boy Scout movement is only disguised militarism and who pretend to believe that our real aim is to make soldiers of you. There is no share of truth in such an insinuation. The aim of the Boy Scout movement, looked at from the widest point of view, is to form a brotherhood of boys of all races, nations and creeds in the hope that, when these boys grow to manhood, the brotherhood of boys will pass naturally into a world-wide brotherhood of men.

Value Of Discipline.

Looked at from the point of view of the individual boy, the aim of the boy scout movement is to make men of you—scholarships, upright, resourceful, law-abiding men. Discipline is one of the means by which these things are taught. Discipline is the outward and visible sign of the inward and spiritual grace. It should mean that in all your acts you are fully conscious that you form part of a troop, an association, a world-wide brotherhood, and that each of you will subordinate at all times his individual aims and ambition to the welfare of the whole fellowship to which he belongs. This is the way in which useful citizens of a country and of the commonwealth of all countries can be made; and this is the ideal which the Boy Scout movement strives to realise. Never forget this and let it inspire your work both as boys and when you become men.

During his address, His Excellency also thanked the Troop who put out the fire in the grounds of Government House.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Dr. Kotewall, in the course of a brief address, said he would like to express his thanks on their behalf to H.E. the Governor for having presented the Prince of Wales' banner and the two letters of commendation, and also for the deep interest His Excellency had always taken in the affairs of the local Scout Association. Dr. Kotewall joined in congratulating the troops on the smart manner in which they had turned out and also the recipients of the banner and the letters of commendation.

Speaking with regard to the Boy Scout movement, Dr. Kotewall supported His Excellency in the stress laid by him on the value of discipline. He also agreed and wished to assure the Scouts themselves that there was not a shred of truth in the insinuation that their movement was a military one. It was a non-political and non-military movement, and he for one would never have taken a share in the movement had it been designed for military purposes.

Game Of Life.

Dr. Kotewall again stressed the value of discipline, and reminded the boys that H.E. the Governor had on a previous occasion said that the scout movement was not merely to teach them how to play games, but was to help them to play the game of life.

It had given him (the speaker) much pleasure to be enrolled as one of them, and if at any time he could do anything for them as their President, then they need not be afraid to approach him.

The proceedings were concluded by the assembly singing, during their hats on their poles and giving cheers, first for H.E. the Chief Scout, and secondly for Lady Clementi, as President of the Girl Guide Association in Hong Kong, and for the Girl Guide movement.

FIRST BRITISHER TO CLIMB
KILIMANJARO.INTREPID LADY EXPLORER
IN HONG KONG.

A "HOMELESS TRAMP."

Miss G. E. Benhan, of London, describing herself as a "homeless tramp," has arrived in Hong Kong on a round the world walking tour.

Miss Benhan said that her intention was to accomplish as much as she could of her journey on foot. She had already walked across Central Africa, New Zealand and thousands of miles in the Himalayas. This is her fourth visit to Hong Kong and her sixth trip round the world. Her return journey lies by way of Guatemala, leaving Hong Kong at the end of this month by boat for Los Angeles, thence by coasting steamer to Guatemala.

Miss Benhan has made three journeys across Central Africa. The route of one, which took her eleven months, lay by way of Nigeria, the Cameroons, the French Congo, Belgian Congo, Uganda (then German East Africa), Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Two Records.

Miss Benhan claims that she must be one of the only "world travellers" not to have written a book on her experiences. "I think that the more people travel the less they write and the less they travel the more they seem to enlarge on it," said Miss Benhan.

The first time that she was in Africa Miss Benhan climbed the Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain in Africa. She is the first Britisher to have accomplished this feat. Germans climbed it some time previous to her visit.

Miss Benhan, who has made all her journeys alone, with a few helpers and active attendants, accomplished the last piece of the climb from the plateau to the summit of the Kilimanjaro absolutely by herself, the native having superstitious objections to climbing great heights.

YOUNG CHINA.

THE emergence into power of what is familiarly known as "Young China" is striking testimony to the changed conditions in this part of the world. The term may be taken to cover the new China which was born in the year of the Revolution and is now entering its teens. Usually, however, the name is applied to the noisy, assertive sections of the student class who, intoxicated with the wine of the new learning, are too impetuous and impatient to await the gradual and normal development of their own country, but want to transform the whole scheme of things as by a wave of a wand. We associate a boisterous enthusiasm, generous impulses, and unbounded zeal for reform with the young man. As with measles this zeal is a social disease that each one must normally catch while the feelings are hot within and the head has not yet taken control. At one period of his life the average, healthy young man must be a socialist or, at least, a social reformer. That is perfectly understood. What is surprising in China, however, is the great influence wielded by, and the scope allowed to, this group at the present time. China above all countries was a place where wisdom was considered to reside in old heads and where age commanded respect as the source of sound advice and good counsel. Now it is all changed. Parents confess in China that they have no control over their offspring. They have abdicated from their position of authority. They still, perhaps, assert their parental control over the choice of a wife and in some other, presumably from the young man's point of view, minor domestic affairs, but in the realm of politics, they have surrendered their claims completely. It is as though they tacitly admitted that their efforts had led to failure, and that as the future is with youth, so the making of the future should be committed to its hands. The young men, it seems, have not won their place in opposition to their fathers, but have established themselves either with their connivance or with their open approval.

The Southern armies are regularly accompanied by a corps of immature young men, who have imbibed the doctrines of the new political faith under Russian guidance, without, of course, being able to grasp the full significance of its meaning. They make up for lack of cool reflection and understanding, by an earnestness and fervour, which must be respected because the youths firmly believe that their teaching will lead to the millennium in their country. The arrival of the Southern army in a town such as Foochow, for example, coincides with an intensive campaign of political oratory. The youngsters swarm into every part of the city as the evangelists of a new and living faith and the remarkable thing is that they infect their hearers, who crowd around them, with their own political discontent and rage for upheaval.

It would appear that the Chinese with their traditional respect for learning and reverence for the printed word, which formerly they associated with the sages, or the old scholars, are deserting the latter because they no longer regard them as the repositories of human wisdom. Though the young man in himself may not be acceptable, he does represent a new learning which is said to be far more potent than the old. Like the woman who suffered from the issue of blood, and for eighteen years spent all her money in seeking health from the old doctors, and was not a whit better, they turn to something new, no matter in what it is embodied, in the hope that good may come.

Hitherto the Chinese have looked back to the past, and up in reverence to the old men who, in a way, represented it, in the belief that the methods, customs and policy which served to preserve and protect the race up to that point, were the safest to adhere to. They realised that the slow process of race consolidation and its stability might easily be jeopardised by innovations and experiments out of line with old traditions.

The contrast on the surface at the present moment is striking. We say, on the surface, advisedly, for the voices of change are always more strident and therefore more prominent, than the deeper, quieter and, perhaps, more powerful, conservative voices, which speak, and speak effectively, in the long run. The power and the utility of a machine or an engine are not usually measured by the noise it makes.

On Tuesday one Chinese case of enteric fever was reported.

At the European Y.M.C.A., Kowloon, this evening, Mr. J. E. Hunt, the Secretary, is to give a talk on every-day art.

Lady Clementi will distribute the prizes to-day, at 4.30 p.m., at the Canossian Institute, Italian Convent School, 38, Chaine Road.

The President and members of St. Peter's Church Young Men's Club, are holding an "at home" at the Club House on Saturday, at 4.30 p.m.

The annual dinner of the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders of Hong Kong is to be held at the Institution at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 11th.

Members are reminded that the adjourned extraordinary general meeting of the Kowloon Football Club takes place at the Club House this evening at six o'clock.

The 37th annual meeting of the Hong Kong Benevolent Society, has been fixed to take place at the City Hall on Wednesday, February 23rd, at noon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., will preside.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Robert Woolley, Staff Sergeant, R.A.S.C., residing at the Garrison Sergeants' Mess, Queen's Road, to Miss Amy Allerton, hospital sister, residing at the Kowloon Hotel.

Members and subscribers are reminded that the fancy dress dance to be held at the Peak Club takes place to-morrow evening. The function begins at 9 a.m. Applications for tickets should be made immediately to the No. 1 Boy at the Peak Club, or to Mr. E. B. C. Hornell, the Hon. Secretary.

A musicale will be held at the Helena May Institute on Thursday, February 17th, at 5.30 p.m. Items will be given by Mrs. R. Sanger, Mrs. S. S. Perry and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith. Tickets including ten 50 cents each, must be booked at the Secretary's office before noon on the 17th inst.—ADVT.

Charged formally, before Mr. R. E. Lindsell at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, the two remaining Swatow piracy suspects, whose case had to be postponed until their discharge from hospital, were remanded until to-day, when Mr. T. H. King, the Director of Criminal Intelligence, will proceed with the case.

Mr. Abe Akimizu, the famous Japanese walker, who was recently in the Colony in the course of his world tramp, has arrived in Canton from Hong Kong. Mr. Akimizu followed the Canton-Kowloon Railway line very closely, covering the distance of approximately ninety miles in exactly 20 hours, states the Canton Gazette.

With regard to the case of the five foles of a shop in Graham Street, who were removed on Tuesday morning to the Government Civil Hospital after eating a meal, which is presumed to have contained poisonous substances, enquiries yesterday showed that one of the victims was discharged from the hospital soon after admission, while the other four "are doing nicely." One or two platters of meat, including some chicken, have been taken to the Government Analyst, and his report as to the exact nature of the poisoning will be made known later.

Defendant was alleged to have gone to the shop in company with two others not in custody and induced the master of the shop to leave his place of business on the pretext that his nephew was very ill. After the master had left the shop, defendant and his two companions began to break open the safe, but were caught in the act by a fole. Two of the men escaped and the defendant was caught after a chase along Water Street.

PARLIAMENT AND THE CHINA CRISIS.

MR. J. R. MACDONALD'S AMIABLE OPTIMISM.

PRIME MINISTER'S REVIEW OF THE FACTS.

TROOPS MAY STAY IN HONG KONG.

During the course of the debate on the speech from the Throne, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald expressed the opinion that the Government were entirely in error in making provision for the defence of Shanghai. He feared the effect of the despatch of troops would be to unite China against us.

The Prime Minister, in reply, emphasised the impossibility of guaranteeing the safety of British lives and property except by force of arms, and referred pointedly to the Hankow incidents.

The strength of the force to be landed would depend on the local situation. If there were no signs of an emergency the leading brigade would remain at Hong Kong for the time being.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, February 9th.

In moving the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, in the House of Commons, the Hon. Oliver Stanley said that the proposed legislation dealing with Trade Unions did not threaten any vital aims of the Trade Union. No responsible body would countenance any attempt to destroy Trade Unionism.

Mr. Charles Macandrew, in seconding, dealt mainly with China, declaring that the British Government, had taken the only safe course.

Labour and Trade Union Law.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald contended that any difficulties arising out of the present position of the Trade Union law should not be dealt with just at this moment. If the Government were wise it would leave matters alone. (Opposition cheers.) He declared that the Trades Union Bill would be regarded by every Labour organisation as a political movement for advancing political issues. It would be fought at every stage. (Labourite cheers.)

THE CHINA PROBLEM.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, referring to China, said that when the military defence force was sent out to act as policemen, a new situation was created. It might possibly increase the security of Britishers at Shanghai, and possibly not. Mr. MacDonald was of opinion that the reaction on the other side would be bad. The first effect was to unite Peking and Canton in a protest. If the Chinese Governments either at Peking or Canton, deliberately adopted the policy violently to eject us from China, the reaction in this country would be so great that nobody would care to contemplate the result. The only way of diminishing the risks of Britishers in Shanghai was to proceed with negotiations and get such arrangements under consideration as would make an outbreak of violence absolutely impossible.

"What Better Security?"

But, on the contrary, the Government was playing with fire. He refused to believe that a judicious handling of the situation could not get the Hankow agreement signed. If that were signed, what better security could there be for Britishers in Shanghai?

Mr. MacDonald asked for information on various points, including: what communications had been received from other Powers as regards the security of their subjects and on the landing of British troops in the International Settlement; whether any attempt had been made to get an agreement with the Cantonese as regards the security of Britishers in Shanghai; whether the troops were sent on the request of our representatives in China or contrary to their wishes; and, particularly, what was the precise position to-day? He appealed to Mr. Baldwin to announce that if negotiations could be opened, the troops would be diverted, on the ground that the risk to cover which they were sent had been removed.

He referred to the disturbing rumours of a rupture of Anglo-Russian relations and asked whether Mr. Baldwin contemplated any change in his Russian policy.

The Prime Minister's Reply.

The Premier, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, said that every foreign community in Shanghai had made it quite clear that evacuation in case of danger was out of the question, and until we were clear that the neighbourhood of Shanghai would not be the fighting ground of the national forces of China it could not be said that the danger to Europeans and Japanese in Shanghai had passed.

Cabinet Resolution.

Mr. Baldwin read the following resolution passed by the Cabinet yesterday:—

"That the general policy of the Government be based on the following considerations: Our troops are sent to the Far East to safeguard British life in China, and particularly at Shanghai; that was and is the only policy of the Government. The question of the time at which and the manner and the number in which troops should be landed at Shanghai must, obviously, depend on the local situation and the advice we receive from our representatives on the spot. If they consider that the emergency requires the immediate disembarkation at Shanghai we shall act accordingly. If not the leading Brigade of troops will be held in readiness at Hong Kong, whilst the rest of the force is approaching. There can, of course, be no question of entering into any arrangement with Mr. Eugene Chen or anybody else in connection with the movement of troops which were despatched solely with the object of protecting British life." (Ministerial cheers.)

"A Possible Massacre."

Mr. Baldwin assured Mr. Ramsay MacDonald that all the points the latter had put had been considered by the Government, but the Government's responsibility gave the factors rather a different weight. Appearances in China to-day, recalled what was seen shortly before the Boxer troubles. The danger lay not merely from a mob in Shanghai, but the possibility was shown at Hankow that if bloodshed was begun, Chinese troops would be fighting with the mob and with a possible massacre of Whites. Mr. Baldwin said that as regards the situation at Hankow, nothing had occurred to make us alter our determination to achieve our ends by negotiation. Mr. O'Malley was at this moment awaiting a further communication from Mr. Chen, and possibly, the Government, by Thursday, would be able to tell the House something more in that connection.

Recognition of South Impossibility. In emphasising British neutrality in Chinese internal affairs, the Premier said that the South would like us to declare that they are the Government of China when they hold authority over but a fraction thereof.

It was impossible for us to do that as it was impossible for us to help the North in various directions they would like. Nobody knew when China would again be united or what form a united China might take.

Nothing New For China.

To-day's events were nothing new in the history of China, for they were common to every period of Dynastic breakdown. It was our earnest desire, from motives of self-interest if for no other, that the period should be shortened to the utmost. In the meantime, we do and are doing what we could by getting on with the most generous offer to the North and South by discussing the object of coming together, in the hope that when the internal struggles were ended we would enter on new friendly and propitious relations with a great and united country with which in the past we had been on wholly friendly relations and relations of service to both sides—relations which, in view of our position in Asia and the East, must play a great and growing part in the peace and prosperity of the whole Eastern Hemisphere. (Cheers.)

Labour Amendments.

The Labour Party lodged two amendments, namely on the question of China and the Trade Union Bill.

The debate was adjourned. The Opposition will move its amendment to the Address to China on Thursday, when Sir Austen Chamberlain will make an exhaustive statement.

A full debate will follow. The House of Lords adopted the Address and will debate China tomorrow, on the motion of Lord Parmoor. (Labour.)

BRITISH PUBLIC OPINION.

SUPPORT FOR CABINET POLICY.

GENERAL PRESS APPROVAL.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, February 9th.

A survey of the press shows that the hopeful references to the Chinese situation in the King's speech and the reassuring statement of Cabinet policy made in Parliament by the Premier express completely the general sentiment of the British public.

The Times says that Mr. Baldwin's statement leaves little opening for criticism. It reaffirms in unassailable terms the principles and plans which underlie British policy.

The Daily Telegraph discusses the statement that the actual disembarkation at Shanghai would be decided in accordance with the facts of the local situation and that if an immediate landing there were not advised by the British representatives on the spot the troops would in any case be held in readiness at Hong Kong. It remarks that the question is one of security and nothing else. If that can actually be guaranteed by the presence of the defence force at such a distance from the place where protection may be required public opinion will be satisfied.

The Morning Post says Mr. Baldwin's statement will be heartily approved throughout the country.

The Daily Express welcomes the emphasis which was again laid on the fact that troops have been despatched only for the protection of lives against mob violence and armed attack and that Britain will maintain her traditional policy of non-interference in Chinese internal affairs. "Britain once more offers to remove all real grievances and to establish relations of friendship and good will. That is an unimpeachable policy and one that is bound to succeed if China cares to emulate Great Britain in the matter of good faith and straight-forwardness."

The Daily News believes that changes for the better in China during the past few days hold out a reasonable chance of a peaceful issue being reached. It adds that both sides have now had leisure to study the British proposals and realise something of their enormous significance to the future of China. These proposals are the best possible answer to Russian propaganda against Britain.

The Manchester Guardian referring to the decision regarding the troops, says:—"We are now broadly in line with the United States who have also strengthened their forces in Far Eastern waters but have declined to dispatch any to Shanghai itself until the necessity arises."

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN ENTENTE.

CURIOUS FRENCH COMMENT.

The Paris press continues to feature the crisis in China. Figaro in an article entitled the Anglo-American entente says that the Chinese drama and its repercussions all over Asia will severely strain Anglo-American co-operation and thinks that British must now begin to realise the price she paid by "sacrificing the Anglo-Japanese alliance on the altar of American friendship." Britain doubtless feels, although she does not complain openly, that American support, the financial importance whereof she recognises, is too slow to make itself felt in other spheres.

PEKING ORDERS SURTAX COLLECTION.

OPPOSITION TO BE INGORED.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9th. According to a Chinese telegram from Shanghai, it was decided at a Cabinet meeting at Peking yesterday that an order be immediately issued to instruct the newly appointed Inspector-General of Chinese Customs to authorise the early imposition of the 2.5 per cent. surtax in all Customs Houses, regardless of any opposition raised by foreign merchants.

It was also decided that in case the imposition of the surtax through existing Customs Houses is impracticable, another plan—probably through banking circles—should be adopted and be referred to the Ministry of Finance and the Taxation Office.

The opinion was expressed that Dr. Wellington Koo has caused the dismissal of Sir Francis Aglen and in order to "have face" it was impossible for the Peking Government to yield to the Diplomatic Corps and reinstate him.

BATTLE FOR SHANGHAI?

SOUTHERNERS NOW CLAIM SUCCESS.

THE HONAN SITUATION.

Following yesterday's report of an important success for Marshal Sun Chuan-fang's forces in Chekiang, who were said to have almost cleared the province of Cantonese troops, we have to-day from Shanghai native and Cantonese sources claims of a Southern victory.

We give the news for what it is worth, and with both sides claiming victory little more can be deduced than that the big battle for Shanghai may have opened.

From the Honan theatre of war comes the news, from a Chinese telegram, that Fengtienese troops have been ordered to cross the Yellow River and proceed to the support of Wu-Fei-fa whose attack on an important strategic point is held up by the presumed disloyalty of his subordinates.

Yesterday Reuter reported fairly confidently that Sun-Chuen-feng's troops had gained an important success.

FIGHTING ON THE TSINTANG RIVER.

CANTONESE ADVANCING.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9th. It is learned from Kuomintang circles in Canton, that a telegram has been received from Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi and the Kuomintang army headquarters, to the effect that serious fighting is in progress in Chekiang along the Taitang River and according to latest reports from the war zone, decisive successes have been gained by the Kuomintang troops who are pursuing the enemy forces to Fochiang and Chih-ki about 100 miles South of Nanchow. The report further states that General Ho Ying Yuen, the Kuomintang Commander of the 1st Army Corps is establishing his headquarters at Lankai, on the upper part of the Taitang River and General Pak Sung Chi, another Kuomintang field commander, will shortly arrive there to meet General Ho.

FURTHER CANTONESE REPORTS.

We learn from a Chinese source that though the above mentioned report appeared in Canton papers there may be a certain foundation in the report.

As to reports from Shanghai Marshal Sun Chuen-fang has instructed his authorities to censor the news very carefully.

It is also reported from Canton that Chen Tao Yuen, the Tapan of Anhui and a supporter of Marshal Sun Chuen-fang is going to declare his independence and may possibly go over to the Kuomintang. It is stated that Kuomintang flags are flying over Anking, the capital of that province, and a Kuomintang party branch is being established there.

NORTHERN TROOPS FOR HONAN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9th. Marshal Wu Pei-fu still hesitates to launch an attack on the Southern forces at Wusungwan, a strategic point at the extreme southern border of Honan, because he has a very uncertain hold on his troops, and in view of this Marshal Chang Tso Lin is ordering all Fengtienese detailed for service in Honan to cross the Yellow River.

According to latest report, an important conference was called on the 7th instant at Hanchow, North-west Kiangsi, by Chu Ya-fok, the Tapan of Chih and at this meeting were Ku Ying Che, the Tapan of Honan, Hsu Yuen Chun and Kao Jin Chai, two of General Chang Tsung Chang's subordinates. It was decided that the 8th Shantung Army Corps headed by General Sun Yang, another of Chang Tsung Chang's subordinates, be immediately sent to Honan while the 8th Army Corps also under one of Chang Tsung Chang's officers, be concentrated at Peking, near Nanking, to await instructions to move Southward.

General Chang Juen Yin, one of Marshal Sun's subordinates, is despatching one brigade to Suenchow in Anhui to reinforce General Chao Tao Yuen in his defence against an expected invasion by the Southern forces in South Anhui.

[NAVY WIRELESS.]

ON THE YANGTSE.

TROOP MOVEMENTS CONTINUE.

ICHANG, February 8th. Martial law has been proclaimed, and all passing vessels are obliged to make a stop for military inspection. A large commemorative demonstration was held to-day, but there was no untoward incident. Troop movements on an extensive scale continue.

A strike of houseboys is threatened for Thursday. The officers of the British men-of-war are being granted leave to visit the Concession, but ratings are only landed on the Bund for the purpose of exercise.

MORE CHINESE MEMBERS.

NINE SEATS ON SHANGHAI SHANGHAI COUNCIL.

CHINESE RATEPAYERS' DEMAND.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9th.

The Chinese Ratepayers' Association which is entrusted with the election of three Chinese to the Shanghai International Municipal Council now demand the election of nine Chinese as the present Council consists of nine foreigners and on the ground that the British proposals have offered the Chinese a share in the administration of the Concessions.

At the annual meeting of foreign ratepayers it was agreed that three Chinese should be elected to the Council.

HANKOW NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE.

HANKOW, Feb. 8th.

Following a two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. Eugene Chen and Mr. O'Malley again met this morning.

It is learned that they are examining the position created by Mr. Chen's statement refusing to sign an agreement while British forces are concentrating at Shanghai, with a view to ascertaining whether the difficulty can be surmounted.

PEKING CONSIDERING.

PEKING, Feb. 8th.

It is unofficially but reliably reported that the Cabinet to-day discussed Britain's latest proposals but decided not to reply thereto until the British Reply to the Note regarding the despatch of troops had been received.

SHANGHAI A NEUTRAL ZONE.

JAPANESE OBJECTION?

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9th.

According to a Chinese telegram from Shanghai Great Britain's attitude is in complete harmony with that adopted by America towards the proposal that Shanghai should be kept free from the civil war between the South and North and that fighting should be prevented within a radius of 30 miles of Shanghai. But, according to the same report, Japan has raised an objection and the Japanese Minister at Peking, it is reported, is to see Marshal Chang Tso Lin who is ready to negotiate on this matter.

GUAM MARINES FOR SHANGHAI.

DESPATCHED ON U.S.S. "PECOS."

According to the Manila Times of last Thursday the detachment of Guam Marines ordered to the Philippines by the Navy Department, were to arrive at Cavite last Friday morning on the navy transport Gold Star.

The sea-going soldiers were to be immediately dispatched to Shanghai on the U.S.S. Pecos, of the Asiatic Fleet, which was then preparing for a fast trip. It is evident, comments the Manila Times, that the Navy Department considers the situation in China as serious, as the orders to hold the Guam Marines at Cavite when they should arrive have been cancelled.

Marine officers at Cavite, doubt if there are 300 marines on board the Gold Star as stated in press dispatches. They say that at the time orders were received by the commandant of the marines at Guam to send the detachment, there were not 300 marines on the island. However, it is possible that the Guam detachment which left Manila last month on the Huron, former flagship of the Asiatic Fleet.

MORE FOREIGNERS LEAVING.

EXECUTIONS AT KIUKIANG.

KIUKIANG, February 8th. There was considerable excitement in Kiukiang to-day, crowds running down the Bund. Two platoons of bluejackets were landed from the ships to investigate the cause. It was ascertained that there had been a public execution of Northern spies, and the platoons were withdrawn without incident.

AMERICA'S NEW PRESIDENT.

MR. COOLIDGE NOT TO BE RE-ELECTED?

THIRD TERM AGAINST U.S.A. CUSTOM.

FRIENDS THINK OTHERWISE.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

New York, February 8th.

That President Coolidge will not seek re-election to the Presidency in 1928 is the opinion expressed in a speech by Dr. Butler, President of Columbia University. He expressed the view that it would be fatal for the Republicans to raise the third-term issue and declared that one of the deepest and most persistent convictions of the American people was that no president should hold office three times. President Coolidge's common sense would lead him to announce his unwillingness to stand when the proper time came.

Dr. Butler stated that farm relief and foreign policy would be the main issues of the Presidential campaign. He declared that no one who was not frankly "wet" would stand a chance.

While Dr. Butler disclaimed direct information, significance is attached to the fact that he spent the week-end at White House.

In connection with the speculation as to whether President Coolidge will accept nomination for re-election in 1928, it is interesting to note that while the President refuses to discuss the question friends of his are of opinion that he would accept nomination if it were offered to him, while still more enthusiastic friends are declaring that if business conditions in the United States continue prosperous he will receive nomination "on the platter." Senator Borah, who like Dr. Butler is believed to be hoping for nomination sent a letter to the latter to-day promising to help him to make Prohibition an issue at the next Presidential Convention. Unlike Dr. Butler, however, Senator Borah is seeking nomination as a dry advocate.

IMMIGRATION LAW TO STAND.

THE DRUM COLOGHER CINEMA DISASTER.

IRISH GOVERNMENT ABANDON PROSECUTION.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, February 8th. The State has abandoned the prosecution of William Ford and Patrick Downing in connection with the Drum Cologher cinema fire. It was stated that the object of the prosecution had been attained by the warning publicly given through the steps taken.

Forty-seven lives were lost in the cinema fire at Drumcologher, in County Limerick. The fire started in the operator's box, close to the only exit. The Coroner's jury found that the fire was caused by a lighted candle falling on exposed film. The jury found the operator guilty of negligence in leaving the film exposed, and held that there was endorsement on the part of the promoter in leaving a lighted candle on the table. Ford was the owner and Downing the lessee of the cinema.

TROOPS LEAVE HONG KONG.

DURHAMS AND GLOUCESTERS.

BOUND FOR SHANGHAI.

The 2nd Batt. of the Durham Light Infantry and the 2nd Batt. of the Gloucester regiment left for Shanghai yesterday on the a.s. Takliwa and the a.s. Fama, the steamers which brought them to Hong Kong.

The troops arrived on Monday and Tuesday and remained on board whilst waiting instructions from Home.

The a.s. Sirhana with the Punjab is expected to-day or to-morrow. No definite plans have been made regarding the destination of the British Division. It was rumoured that all were to be stationed for some time at any rate, in Hong Kong, but now the probabilities seem to be that one Brigade will go to Shanghai, one will stay in Hong Kong and one will stay in Singapore.

INDIAN CURRENCY CONTROVERSY.

VOTE OF CENSURE ON GOVERNMENT CARRIED.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

NEW DELHI, Feb. 8th. The Legislative Assembly by 52 votes to 45 have carried a motion censuring the Government for its decision to postpone the Exchange Ratio Bill.

The Government spokesmen had declared that the house must weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the two ratios, knowing whether under the 10d. ratio it may be called upon to abandon the policy of a remission of provincial contributions and impose additional taxation which may hamper railway development.

It may be remembered that on February 6th the Indian National Congress Executive decided by 5 votes to 1 to direct its party members on the Legislative Assembly to support the sixteenpenny rupee ratio, but it is understood that the Government is determined to enact an eighteenpenny ratio, even by resorting to the Governor-General's power of certifying the Bill as essential for the interests of the country, whereby it would come into operation forthwith.

FOOTBALL.

UNITED SERVICES v. CHINA 1.

Playing on the Hong Kong F.C. ground yesterday evening, the Services beat a combined Chinese team by nine goals to one. The attendance was meagre and after the Services had put on six goals, several of the seat holders left the ground. The weather was cold and light showers fell just before the game started. It was 4.15 p.m. when the teams took the field, although the game was advertised to start at 3.30 p.m. The Services relied on the same team that beat Shanghai last week by seven goals to four.

The teams were:—

China.—Ho (E. China); Voong and Lau Kau (E. China); Hu (E. China); Wong Shui Wa (S. China); and Liang (E. China); Two Kwai Sing, Fung King Cheong and Ip Kiu (S. China); Lai Wai Tong and Chen (E. China).

United Services.—Avery; Trim and Baker; Everest, Simms and King; Barkham, Stock, Northey, McGlinchey and Baldwin.

Referee: Mr. Baldwin.

The Services soon took the lead from a penalty, Alexander converting. After this the game was keenly contested for about ten minutes, but then the Chinese went to pieces and the Services rattled on five more goals in quick time. Alexander was in fine fettle on the wing and from his centre, Northey turned the ball into the net. Before this, Fung King Cheong had put the teams on level terms following a weak clearance by Avery. Northey again converted from a centre by Alexander. A peculiar goal was then scored by Alexander. The ball came over from the right and Northey close in headed the ball which went out to the left; Alexander returned and the ball hit the upright rebounded across the goal mouth back to Alexander; the referee blew his whistle and pointed to the centre of the field. Being close up, Mr. Baldwin had no doubt that the ball crossed the goal line. China made one or two visits to the Services' goal but lacked finish. Lai Wai Tong was defaulting with his shooting. Another burst by Alexander and a shot at goal, the ball striking the post and coming back to Stock who returned it into the net. Before the half-time whistle sounded, Northey had run through but his shot hit Ho in goal and came out to the left, Alexander sending the ball into the net. Services 6, China 1.

For the first fifteen minutes of the second half, China quite held their own. In fact with a little sting in their shooting they should have reduced the Services lead for the forwards broke through the defence several times but failed to pass Avery.

Northey scored two fine goals in quick time, sending the ball on each occasion out of Ho's reach with a fast cross shot.

Stock scored a beautiful goal after Northey had been beaten close in. Lai Wai Tong should have scored but sent the ball straight to Avery. Alexander worked in from the wing and shot hard, Ho falling on the ball and then clearing. Simms sent in a fast shot, the ball striking the foot of the upright and shooting across goal and out of play. Alexander brought the ball close into Ho before he was beaten. The final whistle sounded with the Services winners by nine goals to one.

MEDICAL FACULTY v. ARTS FACULTY.

The second of the Inter-Faculty matches was played yesterday afternoon on the University Union ground between the Medical and Arts Faculties and resulted in a win for the latter by 14 runs after a very exciting finish.

The medics batted first and made 157 runs of which A. A. Rumjahn contributed 58. Yeoh secured 4 wickets for 50 runs. The Arts then found runs hard to get but they stuck to it gamely and eventually succeeded in winning by one wicket.

DURHAM'S CAPITAL SOCCER TEAM.

DEFEATED THE R.A. AT KOWLOON.

The Durhams Light Infantry defeated the Royal Artillery in a fast and exciting football game on the Kowloon ground on Tuesday afternoon. The score was two goals to one.

The Durhams have a very strong team and their combination showed that all the men are well accustomed to playing together. They understand each other, and the defence line was almost impenetrable. The wings are fast and they feed the forwards well. With a little practice, the Durhams will settle down to really good football.

In their match against the R.A., the Durhams drew first blood from a penalty ten minutes after the start, and only fine work by the R.A. goalie prevented further scoring before the interval.

In the second-half the Durhams slackened to some extent, giving the opportunity to the R.A. to equalise through Routledge. Just before the whistle was blown, the Durhams seem to have picked up their second wind and fine combination on the part of the forward line, culminated in the left outside netting a second goal.

The Durhams were to play the Kowloon team yesterday, but owing to their departure for Shanghai, this had to be cancelled.

RACING NOTES.

[By RAPHER.]

The following are a few of the better times taken during yesterday morning's gallops. They were all on the sand track, which was very heavy, and some of the times were so bad as to be not worth while recording. Views regarding the capabilities of the ponies are being revised almost weekly and this is especially true of the subs. Kom Tong Hall is still the outstanding sub. and I think he is the best pony in Mr. Ho Kom Tong's stable. Going along very easily his time for 1½ miles was 43.3; 1.25; 2.05.3; 2.42.3; 3.14.9; last quarter, 31.4. Most of the subs. last quarter's were 34 to 37 on account of the wind being against them and the difficulty of the course. The best gallop was put up by Canadian ridden by Mr. Sokloff over 1½ miles. The time was 34; 1.03; 1.42; 2.14; 2.47; last quarter, 33. Other times were as follows:—

White Mouse (Boy), 1½ miles, 44; 1.25.3; 2.05.3; 2.45; 3.20.
Borderer (Boy) and Bagheera (Boy), 1 mile, 39.2; 1.15.2; 1.48.1.
Cavite; Bay (Boy), 1 mile, 34.1; 1.11.3; 1.45.
Olo Custom (Boy), 1 mile, 36.3; 1.11; 1.43.2.
The Grig (Boy) and Pearl River (Boy), 1 mile, 43.3; 1.24.2; 1.57.2.
Salvo (Mr. Bott), 1 mile, 35; 1.11; 1.43.
But-An-Ben (Boy), 1 mile, 33; 1.13.3; 1.45.2.
Mountain Fox (Mr. Reidy) and Mountain Stag (Boy), 1 mile, 40; 1.15.2; 1.57.3.
Tangle (Mr. Reidy) and Lochaber (Boy), 1 mile, 47; 1.25; 2.05; 2.37.4.
Skidoo (Mr. Brodie) and Scooter (Boy), 1 mile, 41; 1.19; 1.54.2; 2.37.3.
Southampton (Mr. Stanton), 1 mile, 34.2; 1.08; 1.40.3.
The George and Vulture (Boy), 1 mile, 36.3; 1.13; 1.49.
Stonehenge (Boy), 1 mile, 40; 1.15.3; 1.47.4.
Saligia (Mr. Ralph), 1 mile, 38; 1.14.2; 1.41.1.
Demon (Boy) and Bing Boy (Boy), 1 mile, 42.2; 1.24; 2.05; 2.36.2.
Armistice (Boy), 1 mile, 41; 1.20; 1.57; 2.30.
September (Mr. Brodie), 1½ miles, 40; 1.14; 1.49.2; 2.24.2; 2.56.2.
San Francisco Boy (Boy), 1 mile in 1.37.4.
Brigade Call (Mr. Gordon) did 1 mile in 2.29. This pony is very fit. King of England (Mr. Hammett), 1 mile in 1.45. Mr. Dynast's Stable is improving and King of Clubs is a pony that should not be lost sight of.

MORE SCHOOLBOY HOWLERS.

THE TUBERCULAR BRIDGE AT MENAI.

THE MEANING OF "LIBERTY OF CONSCIENCE."

Some amusing examples of the unconscious humour of schoolboys' answers to examination questions are given in a selection of "howlers" compiled by Mr. Colin McIlwaine during a recent tour of a number of schools in the south of England.

The selection is published in booklet form by the Lyric Publications, Seaford, Sussex. Following are extracts:—

Scientific.
An oculist is a fish with long legs.
The sublime is a hairy deposit in a cold receptacle.
Barbarians are things put in bicycle wheels to make them run smoothly.
There are two autumns in the mole-cule, which inhabits the bottom of rivers.

Geographical.
The Menai Straits are spanned by a tubercular bridge.
In Russia there are vast carnivorous forests.

Historical.
Joan of Arc was the wife of Noah.
Dick Turpin rode Black Bess to New York.

The Pope called Henry VIII. "Fido the Offensive."
Bonaparte was the Queen of Carthage.
Magna Charter said that the King was not to order taxes without the consent of Parliament.

Literary.
Epics describe the deeds of brave men called epicures.
Pope wrote principally in heroic outlets.
Most of Shakespeare's plays were terrible tragedies.

General.
E. G. means egg sample.
People often lose their consciences when they get ill.
Ambiguity means telling the truth when you don't mean to.
Liberty of conscience means doing wrong and not worrying about it afterwards.

LONELIEST JOB IN THE WORLD.

MR. BALDWIN SAYS IT IS HIS.

OFTEN TIRED BUT NEVER "RATTLED."

"The work of a Prime Minister is the loneliest job in the world," said Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Premier, addressing members of the Worcestershire Unionist Association in his constituency of Bewdley. "It is lonely for this reason—that the Prime Minister cannot share his ultimate responsibility."

"He is in the position of the captain of a ship on the bridge. He must try to look far ahead with much knowledge that is hidden from most of the people of this country. Whether he has done the work well or ill it is impossible for any ephemeral criticism to say. Time alone must be the judge of his work."

That is why the Prime Minister, above all others (Mr. Baldwin went on), must possess his soul in patience and must harden himself to be indifferent to daily criticism. It may be that the criticism which is regarded as foolish at the moment may prove to be good by after events.

Some of you may have read that the Prime Minister was tired, feeble, or rattled. You may take it he is often tired, he may have been feeble, but was never rattled. (Laughter and cheers.)

You may take it from me that what makes the Prime Minister tired when he thinks of it, is to see the results of last year's leadership of industrial labour. To see any prospect of improvement in the conditions of our people being dissipated by the folly of the men's own leaders is by far the most depressing fact in politics at the present day.

This kind of loyalty that was shown by the men in the war was shown in labour struggles by men to their leaders, but when you watch that kind of loyalty you feel it is worth the finest leadership the world can put forward, and they have not had it. (Cheers.) Many men have said Labour did not have a square deal from me. I think it is a far more serious thing it did not get a square deal from its own leaders. (Cheers.)

It is in the position of Prime Minister that I feel the folly wherever it raises its head in every corner of the world. London is like the centre of a giant spider's web, and there is never a silly speech made from Saskatchewan to Patagonia, but you see the vibration go down the filaments of that web, perhaps causing struggles and perhaps bloodshed at some place ten thousand miles away.

And it is these unseen burdens which have constantly to be borne by those who are responsible for the Governments of the countries of the world to-day. These are the burdens that nothing can lift, but they can be eased, and eased indeed they are in my case by the generosity and affection which you always give me.

The Next Election.

Referring to the next election, Mr. Baldwin said:—
I understand that we shall probably have opponents both from the Liberal and Labour Parties. One of the two undoubtedly will lose his deposit, but I don't know which one. (Laughter.) I don't think they need cause us anxiety. There will be very few Labour men returned to Parliament who will not have to fight a Tory before getting there.

Mr. Baldwin said the Government had been thrown a little out of its stride by the events of last year. Referring to widows' pensions, he remarked: "It is perfectly obvious that the financial results of 1926 caused by the labour unrest must put back for some time whatever Government is in power, any further substantial progress in immediate legislation of that kind."

FORTUNE RENOUNCED BY NUN.

PROTESTANT FATHER'S WILL.

Forced by the will of her father to choose between sacrificing a fortune or renouncing her vows as a nun, Miss Grace Minford, a nun in the convent of the Dominican Sisters at Newark, New Jersey, has declared that she will not avail herself of worldly riches.

My Heavenly Father is richer far than my own father," she said, "and my reward will be far greater."
Miss Minford's father, a Protestant, had for years bitterly opposed his daughter's adoption of the Roman Catholic faith, and tried many times to persuade her to leave the convent. In his will he directed that she should not receive a penny of his £200,000 estate if she persisted in adherence to her order or her church. The will provides, however, that if at any time she changes her mind she shall be automatically reinstated as heiress.

1,794,400 WAR PENSIONS.

4,500 WIDOWS A YEAR RE-MARRY.

At the end of last March, according to the annual report of the Minister of Pensions, the number of persons in receipt of pensions or allowances amounted to 1,794,400. This included 23,800 officers, 1,114 nurses, 508,500 men, 154,000 war widows and 583,000 children.

The total is declining from such causes as death—about 23,000 a year, the re-marriage of widows—about 4,500 a year, and the attainment of the maximum pensionable age by children, who are disappearing from the list at the rate of about 81,000 a year.

New claims to the number of 13,978 were admitted, and fresh claims were still being received at the rate of 850 a week.

During the year 10,058 artificial legs and 1,169 artificial arms were issued, mostly renewals. At the end of the year the number of pensioners for whose artificial limbs the Ministry is responsible was 37,080—1,781 officers and 35,308 other ranks.

Artificial eyes (4,831) were fitted to 3,311 pensioners. First issues of 148 hand-propelled tricycles and 170 invalid chairs were made.

The total expended by the Ministry during the year was £26,916,232, and of this only £2,395,547 was in respect of administrative expenses—about 8½d. in the £. The total expenditure for all services from the establishment of the Ministry was £265,000,000, a sum larger than that of any other country engaged in the Great War.

During the year the staff of the Ministry was reduced by 4,272 to 11,358.

NEVER TO DRIVE AGAIN.

EX-R.A.F. PILOT WHO FELL 9,000 FEET.

"You will be disqualified entirely from holding a licence," said the chairman of the Highgate Bench to Charles Robertson Campbell, 49, a City company director, of Hampsteadway, Golders Green, N.W., who was fined £10 with 23s. costs for driving dangerously.

It was stated that when driving his motor-car in High-street, Whetstone, in a zig-zag manner, Campbell collided with a lorry, drove on, and ran into a second lorry. His car was smashed and he sustained an injury to his nose and two black eyes.

It was stated that Campbell served with the Air Force in the war, and had three crashes, including a drop of 9,000 feet, and the accidents left him in a highly nervous state. His friends realised that, because of his health, he ought not to drive a car, and he was ready to surrender his licence. A charge of being drunk was dismissed.

THE SHIP BEAUTIFUL

A MUCH IMPROVED "AQUITANIA."

A FLOATING HOTEL DE LUXE.

After being out of commission for two months, the Cunard liner Aquitania is back in the Transatlantic service and left Southampton early in the year, the Right Hon. J. G. Coates, Prime Minister of New Zealand, the last of the Dominion representatives to the Imperial Conference to leave this country, being among the passengers. During the interval the vessel has not only been completely overhauled, but the period in dry dock has been utilized by the company's engineering and furnishing departments to carry out extensive alterations in the passenger accommodation. Many of the smaller rooms have been amalgamated with the existing suites; the state-rooms have been entirely remodelled, and the Aquitania, always known as the "ship beautiful," is now claimed by her designers, with every justification, to have been made a ship still more beautiful.

Loyal Officers and Crew.

To have carried out so complete a change in so limited a time is no ordinary feat. In the usual way something like 1,500 men are engaged on the overhaul, principally concerned with external painting, cleaning, and mechanical repairs, but on this occasion the labour staff was doubled, and the work proceeded day and night in order that the ship might be ready for sea on her scheduled sailing date. When the Aquitania steamed down Southampton Water to all intents and purposes a new ship, it was a remarkable tribute to her popularity, not only amongst the Cunard Company's clientele, but also among those who look to the sea for their livelihood, to know that, although her crew of nearly 1,000 had "stood off" for two months, they have come back to a ship which is this affection for the pride of the Cunard fleet confined to the lower ratings. Her commander, Sir James Chatfield, whose sea experience goes back to the early eighties, is making his 100th voyage on the ship which he has come to regard as his home, having missed but five trips since the Aquitania was first put into commission in 1914.

Open Fires in State Rooms.

The army of craftsmen employed about the Aquitania included bricklayers, for in every public room huge open fires have been built with the orthodox chimneys and flues to carry away the smoke. In two months of strenuous activity some 320 "openers" have been altered and entirely redecorated. On "B" deck the two chief suites have been considerably enlarged by making the verandah a part of the sitting-room. The walls have been paneled in hardwood, the ivory base colour being relieved by stripes of cobalt and vermillion. The curtain hangings of blue and grey damask are matched with carpets in blue and silver design.

In Queen Anne Style—Face Up To 2400.

One of the suites has been modeled in the Queen Anne style in paneled sycamore. The bed-rooms have been treated with silk fabrics in grey, relieved with red and blue. Bedsteads are of oxidized silver, and for the greater convenience of the occupants of these veritable self-contained flats in miniature, baggage grids for trunk wardrobes have been provided. To occupy one of these suites the cost varies from £300 to £400 for each person on a single voyage. In two of the suites the private verandahs have been rebuilt to represent sun rooms similar to those attached to many of the great mansions in America. Their walls have been treated so as to look like stonework, and the illusion is quite effective.

Wonderful Decorative Schemes.

Throughout the rooms on this deck where redecoration has taken place there has been a definite colour scheme towards more striking colours and luxuriantness. Satinwood and mahogany have been used most effectively in many of the wall panelings, and there are painted dados with silk fabric. In one of the walls are paneled and draped with striped silk in shades of brown, toning from copper to sepia. The curtains of artificial silk and repp are in colour, while the furniture coverings have been carried out in brown, blue, and gold. Most of the rooms on "C" deck now have private shower-baths, and towards the after-part 100 rooms have been replanned, reducing the number by one half, but giving double the accommodation they possessed hitherto. On this deck, too, much thought has been given to the decorative schemes, and some really wonderful results have been achieved, with grey, rose, orange, green and cream predominating. Below decks there has been a prodigious overhaul.

To wander at random through the corridors, state apartments, and public rooms is in itself an education. One discovers in passing a shopping centre, a recreation room and gymnasium, a swimming bath, a post-office, a library, a hospital, and a host of other things to make for the happiness and complete comfort of the voyager.

INTERNATIONAL SWINDLER SENTENCED.

7 YEARS FOR FRAUDS IN GERMANY. LONDON CRIMINAL.

Roderick Morison, a former friend of William Cooper Hobbs and one of the most notorious criminals of London's underworld, has been sentenced by a Munich court to seven years' imprisonment for fraud. Herbert Barry, an accomplice, received a similar sentence.

Both men, by working the old confidence trick in a new setting, succeeded, before they fell into the clutches of the German police, in swindling out of large sums of money, a number of Americans travelling on the Continent.

They started operations in May 1925 in Munich by victimizing a Chicago married couple. Barry introduced himself to the Americans as a fellow-countryman, giving his name as Barry Wallis.

The Americans took a walk with their new acquaintance, and an elderly man walking just in front of them was seen to drop a parcel. Barry picked it up and courteously restored it to the stranger, who, humming with gratitude, invited the three to a café close by.

He there introduced himself as Patrick O'Brien, a native of Dublin, and told them his romantic story. He had just had the good luck, he said, to inherit a large fortune.

New Friends.

Nothing would give him greater pleasure than to entrust a few thousand dollars to his new acquaintances to be distributed among the poor of Chicago. He suggested, however, that he and his new friends should first give each other some proof of their trustworthiness. The Americans agreed, and went to the bank, where he drew a considerable sum in dollars. This he handed over to the two men, together with five rings and a gold watch and chain, he handed over to the philanthropic Mr. O'Brien, receiving in return an attaché case containing the O'Brien millions.

Both Americans, at the suggestion of Mr. O'Brien, then went for a short walk, talking with them the precious attaché case.

They were able to give satisfactory proof of their honesty by returning with it to the café, where upon Barry and Mr. O'Brien went off in their turn. O'Brien taking with him the money and valuables entrusted to him by the Chicago tourists.

The Americans awaited their return in vain. Gradually the truth dawned on them, and on opening the attaché case they found it to contain nothing but valueless pieces of paper.

O'Brien, alias Morison, and Wallis, alias Barry, successfully performed the same trick in Berlin on July 4th, their victim on this occasion being the manager of a drapery store in Los Angeles.

Elusive Genius.

"Bob" Morison, as he is called, has been known to Scotland Yard for years as a notorious confidence man and card-sharp, and as an associate of international criminals. He was a close friend of William Cooper Hobbs, the arch conspirator of the "Mr. A" case, and was both feared and respected among London criminals.

Morison was the organising genius of many large coups, but he was so careful to keep in the background that Scotland Yard found it difficult to work up a case against him, and during the twenty years he was in London, succeeded in obtaining only one conviction. He was on that occasion sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

He was known as the "father of the confidence men" because of his grey hairs and benevolent appearance.

Hobbs went to live with him at his house in Herne Hill when the police net was closing in on the "Mr. A" conspirator.

ARMY SELECTION BOARD CHANGES.

EFFICIENCY BEFORE SENIORITY.

The working of the new system of Army promotion, will be simplified and improved by a big change which has just been made in the Selection Board. Hitherto this has consisted of twelve members—the four military members of the Army Council, the Military Secretary, and the General Officers Commanding-in-Chief of the six commands at home and the Rhine Army. It is now reduced to consist merely of the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Adjutant-General, and the General Officers Commanding-in-Chief of the three principal commands—Aldershot, Eastern, and Southern.

The unwieldy numbers of the old board, and the difficulty of reconciling so many opinions, were an inevitable handicap to a genuine selection of the fittest, and thus tended to the compromise of falling back on seniority as the main factor in choosing officers for promotion. The change is therefore a welcome assurance that the new system of selection will have a good start.

THE NEW RADIO PASTIME.

ATLANTIC PHONE EAVES-DROPPING. SOUTH AFRICA JOINS THE LISTENERS.

The new 25-minute Transatlantic wireless telephone has been very busy say recent small reports and in every case transmission and reception were perfect.

So clear and powerful is the transmission that it is being picked up far and wide over the earth's surface. Many people in Great Britain and in the United States have found in this type of eavesdropping a new pastime. Parties of people have probably been able to listen to the conversations being shouted out of loud-speakers.

A message from Johannesburg to The Daily Mail states that amateurs there and in other places in South Africa distinctly heard not only persons speaking from New York, but also London callers.

The New York World has been publishing reports of overheard wireless conversations. Wireless users in Great Britain must bear in mind that it is illegal for them to publish any information picked up by them on their receivers.

London business men and, indeed, all who have already used the Transatlantic telephone do not underestimate the importance of this latest wonder of science, but they are convinced that the practical value of the achievement is at the present time seriously lessened by its lack of secrecy.

Tests To Secure Secrecy.

Questioned as to what steps were being taken to outwit eavesdroppers, one of the principal experts at the General Post Office said:

"The problem is extraordinarily complicated; and it is obvious that what experts inside the Post Office are able to do other experts outside will be able to do also if they deliberately set out to do it."

It means that the Post Office will have to devise secret methods of ensuring secrecy in the service, and this will be an extremely difficult thing to do.

Certain experiments are being made, however, with a very complicated aid to secrecy which consists of cutting out parts of speech that again at the other end of the circuit. If the method proves successful, would-be eavesdroppers will hear only a confused jumble of sounds.

£150 Gall.

Among the ocean calls was a conversation lasting half an hour, and costing £150, between a woman in London and a man in New York. Post Office experts were agreeably surprised to experience practically no "sunset fading" during the week-end working of the service.

WAITERS' CORK MONEY.

PAID BY SHIPPERS TO PUSH WINES.

HOTELS' STEP TO CHECK EVIL.

Vigorous attempts are being made by the proprietors of some of the leading hotels and restaurants in England to stamp out the evils of the "corkage" or "cork money" system. Under this system waiters and merchants encourage shippers to push the sale of certain brands of wine by paying them a small fee for each cork taken from the bottles.

Waiters at some leading restaurants have been ordered to hand all wine-bottle corks to the cashier. These are burnt by the management.

Proprietors of a number of hotels have also sent circulars to shippers and merchants requesting them to pay no fee to any employee on the presentation of a cork from a wine or spirit bottle. This action followed a discussion between the Hotels and Restaurants Association and the Bribery and Secret Commissions Prevention League.

Illegal Payments.

Mr. R. C. Vaughan, managing director of a number of large hotels in London and the provinces, and a very active member of the association, said:

"The association has been informed that the payment of corkage is an illegal offence if it is done without the knowledge and approval of the proprietors of the hotels or restaurants at which it takes place. It will be possible now to take legal action if such money is still paid to any waiter at the hotels."

The system is a very bad one. Only a little while ago I was dining at a restaurant in the West End of London and a waiter tried for nearly a quarter of an hour to push two brands of wine upon me. It was almost impossible for me to get any other.

At some small restaurants, I believe, the proprietors do not object to the system. At the larger and better class ones the proprietors like their customers to choose what wine they want."

"It is understood that both a waiter receiving corkage money and the wine-shipper paying it would be liable to prosecution should a restaurant proprietor decide to take action."

"EMPRESS OF SCOTLAND"

HERE TO-DAY.

OVER 400 TOURISTS ON BOARD.

As mentioned in Tuesday's Daily

Press the R.M.S. Empress of Scotland, engaged on her second round-the-world cruise, is due at Hong Kong to-day. She is expected to berth about eight o'clock this morning, on her arrival from Manila.

She left Southampton on her present cruise on November 13th, first visiting Canada to pick up tourists from there, and thence on to New York. The itinerary of the cruise has already been given.

The minimum fare for the trip is £3.3.0 per day, but more wealthy tourists, such as American millionaires pay as much as £2,000 for an entire suite to themselves on the voyage.

It is understood that owing to unsettled conditions, the visits to Shanghai and Chinwangtao (for Peking) will not be made, but much will depend upon further development, nothing having been definitely settled. The Empress of Scotland will remain in port here until

Sunday evening, when she sails for the North at ten o'clock.

The liner carries no fewer than 80 American millionaires, and 350 other wealthy tourists, and she is visiting 30 ports in 22 different countries, after which there will be nothing that the said millionaires will not know!

Prior to her departure, the

C.P.R. liner was thoroughly overhauled and reconditioned for the trip by Messrs. Harland and Wolff.

The gymnasium, ballroom, smoke rooms, and in fact all parts of the ship, were refurnished to make her one of the smartest and best equipped of the world's cruisers. The second-class dining saloon was converted into a cruise office and an electric laundry, capable of washing, drying and ironing all the intimate garments of her millionaires and lesser lights.

Arrangements for shore excu-rations during the vessel's stay here are in the hands of the local agents of the C.P.R., these including motor tours of the New Territories, and the island, dinner dances at

Raffles, Hay and Hong Kong

Hotels, trips to the peak and Macao and the usual days for shopping, which are never omitted from the Hong Kong schedule of tourists calling here.

HOME MAILS.

Inward Home mails are due tomorrow from two routes. The Shirata will bring letters from the United Kingdom, dated London,

January 13th, via Negapatam, and the Hakozaki Maru is also due with

Home and European mail via Siberia.

Letters via Negapatam, of the same date as the letters via that route, are due on Sunday by the Lai Sang.

There are also a number of mails

from the United States, Canada and the North due within the next few days. The President Monroe is arriving on Monday, the President Wilson on Thursday next, and the President Jefferson on the Saturday.
